Dental Treatment in the Era of COVID-19

Thank you for your continued trust in our practice. As with the transmission of any communicable disease such as a cold or the flu, you may be exposed to the coronavirus that causes COVID-19 at any time or in any place. Be assured that we follow state and federal regulations, as well as recommended universal personal protective equipment (PPE) and disinfection protocols, to limit transmission of all diseases in our office.

Despite our careful attention to sterilization, disinfection, and the use of personal barriers, there is still a chance that you could be exposed to an illness in our office, just as you might be exposed at your gym, grocery store, or favorite restaurant. Nationwide social distancing has reduced the transmission of the coronavirus. Although we have taken measures to enable social distancing in our practice, due to the nature of the procedures we provide, it is not possible to maintain social distancing between the patient and dental healthcare team members, and sometimes other patients, at all times.

Although exposure is unlikely, do you accept the risk and consent to treatment?
